ABOUT THE PROGRAMME

Green bonds which finance projects with environmental benefits have passed the USD1 trillion milestone for the amount issued since the first ever green bond in 2007. Fast growth in this market sector is driving unprecedented demand for skilled professionals in the fundamentals of the products and the application of the Green, Social and Sustainability-Linked Bond Principles, the foundation for sustainable bond issuance.

This webinar provides a deep understanding of the mechanics of green, social and sustainability bonds, from the big picture policy context to introducing the underlying drivers of market development, main product features and regulation. It discusses the Principles and explains how they work in practice, including evaluation and selection of eligible projects for funding, the role of external reviewers and guidance on reporting.

The programme is illustrated with examples from the market, getting you ready to apply the knowledge at work and includes online self-study with a series of 12 x 15-min narrated videos, plus concept-checking questions and supplementary materials, available to participants for six months as reference material :
